The voice of the spring poet is hushed, and the song of the lark has not yet floated across the sunny meads of fair Virginia. Nor may the poet safely open his rhyming lexicon today, nor the lark spring from his hidder bower. Some more of the "beautiful" is expected, for the United States Weather Bureau has issued another dismal prophecy that snow will fall again to-day, and recently the weather prophet has swung close to the truth.

GOVERNOR SIGNS

Along with a score of other bills.
Governor Stuart signed yesterday the bill authorizing the State to take over and operate the Virginia Home and Industrial School for Girls, in Chesterield County, which has been a storm centre in the last six months. The measure provides that the home, with States Marshal for the Eastern District of Virginia and States and any number of receptive ones are already for the field to succeed Sergeant John G. Saunders, of Hustings Court, Part II., whose appointment as United States Marshal for the Eastern District of Virginia and States and any number of receptive ones are already for the field to succeed Sergeant John G. The Governor likewise signed the bill directing the Governor and the Attorney-General to purchase the Ford Motel for from the city of Richmond at a price not to exceed $180,000. Governor Mann attempted to negotiate the transfer of one-half of the Ford lot last fall under the terms of a similar bill passed by the General Assembly of 1912. His overtures met with such a cold reception from the city, which would not then consider a sale of only a portion of the property. The purchase is to be made only in the event that there is an actual surplus in the State Treasury.
